Welcome to the world of cloth diapering! For some of us who've been around for a few (okay, several) decades, cloth diapers are the "norm" – but for the past forty years or so, disposables have taken over. While disposable diapers have a lot to recommend them, we all know that they have their problems, too; they're expensive, they fill up the landfills (and take forever to decompose), and can make it more difficult to potty train.

But using cloth diapers can be kind of scary. Are there different kinds of cloth diapers? Are there different sizes? How do I wash them when the nearest laundry machine is three blocks away? What keeps them from leaking through the cloth and all over my floors and furniture.

In this two-hour workshop, Cassie Louis will be answering all of these questions, as well as tons of others you may not even have thought of. By the time you're finished, you'll know everything there is to know about cloth diapers:

- Where to find them;
- What makes a good cloth diaper;
- Ways of folding cloth diapers;
- How to wash and dry them (even without a washing machine handy);
- How to fasten the diaper on a squirming baby;
- How to change the diaper;
- How to make diapers from stuff you may already have on hand;
- And much more...

Once the workshop is over, those who wish to make the commitment to using cloth diapers will be able to sign up with PEPartnership as a cloth diaper user, and will receive (free of charge) a "starter kit" that'll take you pretty much from now through potty training. (Please note: if you choose this option, you will no longer be able to get disposable diapers from PEPartnership pantries as you used to; we'll still allow you a small emergency supply, but a small emergency supply only.)

Cloth Diapering 101 is offered on the third Thursday of each month at the Zion and Stoughton PEPs:
